Professional Skills

Contracting for Privacy and Cybersecurity

In using service providers and particularly ICT service providers, business and government put their confidential and personal data in the hands of others. It's critical that the contract appropriately addresses privacy and cybersecurity: the obligations of the service provider, rights of the customer and the allocation of risk and responsibilities between them when the inevitable data breach occurs. Consider:

- Pre-contract considerations: due diligence
- Negotiating privacy clauses
- Lessons learned from application of the new data breach notification laws: PageUp data breach
- Addressing cybersecurity including cyber insurance

Presented by Helen Clarke, Partner, Corrs Chambers Westgarth
